"I don't think that there should be a mandate for every American to have health insurance. I think that one of our goals should be that every American own their own home. But I'm not going to mandate that every American own their own home.

I think that every American should have the available and affordable college education. But I'm not going to mandate that every American go to college. I feel the same way about healthcare. If it's affordable and available then it seems to be that it's a matter of choice amongst Americans."
